Friends,

I must say that my passion for sports has dissipated dramatically over the past several years. This is partially because Nebraska football has been so disappointing recently, but there are other factors as well. I'm increasingly aggravated by the amount of money involved in athletics, which is a sign that sports has become our god. Additionally, the increasing politicization of sports is difficult to stomach.

Take, for instance, the phenomenon of kneeling during the national anthem. As troubling as such behavior is to me, it is completely understandable. After all, I suspect the players that protest this had very different upbringings than I did. I was raised in a family where, after Christmas, the biggest holiday of the year was the 4th of July. I was raised to appreciate the flag as a symbol of the sacrifices made to protect my freedom. As such, it demanded proportionate respect. I wonder if for those who protest during the anthem it was the same.

I know the educational system wasn't. I was taught that the United States of America was the greatest country in the world, that Christopher Columbus was a hero, the pioneers were to be admired for their courage and perseverance, that hundreds of thousands of Americans (predominantly white) fought and died in the civil war to free slaves, that the United States saved the world from both Nazi Germany and Soviet Communism.

Today many are taught almost the exact opposite. Many are taught that the United States is the biggest pillager of the earth, Christopher Columbus was a symbol of imperialism and oppression, and that the United States was founded on the precept of racism because of slavery. In fact, this racism had been systemized to the extent that its effects are damaging the well-being of certain communities, particularly communities of color. Had I been raised like that, would I have the courage to protest the anthem or the flag? The answer, sadly, is no.

"But Father," you may ask, "What systemic injustice have you suffered?" The answer is infinitely more horrific than the idea of institutionalized racism. That injustice is abortion. After all, regardless if police actually are systematically executing African Americans, it would still pale in comparison to the systemic pressure our society puts on mothers to abort their children...to the tune of 3,000/day in our country alone. Yet, have I ever done something as stigmatizing as protesting during the national anthem to raise awareness of this systemic injustice? Perhaps these young athletes are way more courageous for their cause than I am for mine.

Nevertheless, the actions of these athletes are completely and totally misguided. In fact, just as I would say it is completely and totally misguided for Catholics to protest during the National Anthem to raise awareness of the injustice of abortion, so, too, is it completely and totally misguided for athletes to do so to raise awareness of institutionalized racism. Why?

The answer comes from the virtue of piety, which is a gift of the Holy Spirit. Piety allows us, principally, to show reverence to God as the ultimate authority. Secondarily, however, piety extends to other authorities, even very flawed ones. It is the virtue of piety that empowered Jesus to submit to the flawed authority of Pontius Pilate. This virtue is the root of the virtue of patriotism, which recognizes that our country is a kind of mother.

To be patriotic, however, means to expose injustice. True patriotic Germans were the ones opposing the nationalist Nazis, not tolerating them. We, as Catholics, have the obligation to expose the injustice of abortion. I'm sure those who protest the anthem think they have the obligation to expose injustice as well.

However, there is a time and place for everything. The National Anthem is neither the time nor the place for protest. Rather, it is the time and the place to focus on the good that unites us, rather than the evil that divides us. In fact, it is most fitting to begin secular events, and even religious ones, with the National Anthem. Even though our country is very flawed (e.g. abortion), she is still a "mother" that needs to be appreciated, even if she is also a mother that is imperfect.

In Christ, F. E. I.

GOSPEL READING

Jesus initially reacts negatively to the Canaanite (Gentile) woman in a manner familiar to most Jews of that day. But Jesus showed the disciples that faith in him transcends the historic divide between Jew and Gentile. When have you allowed your faith in Christ heal a division?

THE CHALLENGE OF STEWARDSHIP

Every day we are called by Christ to respond in some way. The more practice we have at giving of ourselves freely and living in His presence, the easier it is to discern that call. Once we hear the call, the choice is ours: will we respond with yes or no? We could say that we are not required to say yes because God has given us free will. However, our response speaks much to where we are in our maturity of faith. When we were children, the word "no" used to be one of our favorites. If we continue to say that as we get older, well, that says something about where we are in our walk with the Lord. If we truly are disciples of Jesus Christ and are serious about growing in our faith, we will say "yes." We are not required to say yes, but we say yes because that is who we have become.

This is the challenge of a stewardship way of life. Have we matured enough to say yes when God calls, regardless of how much our answer may cost us? What matters more to us: what it will cost us or our relationship with Jesus? Some days we will easily be able to say yes. The grace and love he gives us will be plenty to see us through whatever situation in which we find ourselves. However, we are imperfect beings and there will be days when we are more into ourselves than him. It is on those days that we find ourselves at a true crossroads of a challenge. The choice is always ours. Hopefully, our faith will be strong enough. His call is never for his own sake. He calls us because the world he created and the Church he instituted need us. They wait just as he does for our response.
