Friends,

I hate mornings. Especially those dreary, dark, bitterly cold Monday mornings in the middle of February when the sound of the alarm clock literally shocks you into consciousness. You know you have to get up. But it is so hard because every fiber of your being is clinging to your warm, comfy bed.

Of course, not every morning is that bad. In fact, there are some mornings that really can't come fast enough. The same eight-year-old child that must be dragged out of bed for school springs out of bed hours earlier on Christmas morning. I assume that most brides have no problem getting up on their wedding day, even if the night before was rather long. I certainly have no difficulty getting out of bed, even at two in the morning, if I'm going fishing. What makes these kinds mornings so much easier than most others?

The answer is hope. Hope is the reason the eight-year-old child bounces out of bed on Christmas morning. Hope is the reason the bride is eager to get to the church. Hope is the reason I so look forward to fishing (although, in my case, that hope is usually not that well-founded). Without hope, not only is all desire removed, but all of our joy is as well. When there is no hope, we are grumpy, bitter and depressed. But, with it, we are excited, eager and happy.

If there was anyone that exemplifies the value and the importance of hope it is the Blessed Virgin Mary. In fact, think about how Mary could even get out of bed after watching her Son, the Divine Son of God, be so brutally crucified at the hands of the very people He came to save. If ever there was someone who shouldn't have wanted to face the trials of a new day, it should have been Mary. To lose a child under any situation would be enough to tempt any of us to lose hope. To lose the child you were told by an angel would become the savior of the world would have been unimaginable.

Why isn't Mary bitter, angry and frustrated, not just with the soldiers, but with God? She was told by the Angel Gabriel that her child would be given "the throne of His father David and He will reign over the house of Jacob forever; and of His kingdom there will be no end." Now this child is dead. Who could really blame Mary if she felt hopeless? Well, the one person who would blame Mary is Mary. Why? Well, because, it is in the midst of this complete darkness that Mary's perfection of hope shines the brightest.

The theological virtue of hope is probably best defined as trust // trust not in ourselves or in our circumstances // but rather trust in the power of God. Notice what this says about hope. True hope is in the power of God. And, the power of God has absolutely no limitations. It is when Mary has absolutely no hope in herself or any of the earthly realities that surround her that her theological virtue of hope is perfected. Thus, on that first Easter morning, Mary probably springs out of bed, because her hope is, not in herself, her circumstances or anything else, but in God. The resurrection proves that Mary's hope was not in vain. For with the Resurrection, God demonstrates that there is no difficulty, not even the worst human difficulties of suffering and death, that cannot be overcome by the power of God.

Notice what this says about our times of darkness, difficulty and doubt. For all too often the world around us gives us no hope. If our only hope is in these worldly realities, we are going to be bitter, angry and afraid. But, this is foolishness! For we have nothing to fear! For with the Resurrection of Jesus Christ, we have read the last page of the book. The good guys win, and they live happily ever after.

Blessings,

Fr. EJA

REFLECT

FIRST READING

We hear today part of the speech that Peter delivered in the household of Cornelius, a centurion and Gentile-believer in Christ. Peter bore witness to his experiences with Jesus, including Jesus' resurrection. To whom do you bear witness to your faith in the resurrected Jesus?

SECOND READING

Paul urges the Colossians to remain focused on Jesus' resurrection, ascension, and final return — to "seek what is above." What do you find appealing in this spiritual exercise?

GOSPEL READING

Mark's account of Jesus' resurrection focuses on the women's discovery of the empty tomb. In fact, Jesus risen from the tomb is the original ending of the Gospel of Mark. Why do you think Mark would end his Gospel with the empty tomb?
